LEFTS HAVE RIGHTS, TOO

The barge dropping boulders for a new breakwater doesn't care if the surf destroyed is beach break or classic point surf, lefts or rights. Its goal is to put a stop to whatever waves happen to be there, and it means an end to surfing.

Despite mankind's short-term efforts to change or destroy them, waves continuously fight for their right to exist. As surfers, we must fight for those rights or risk losing the very resources that make us what we are.

What can you do? Join The Surfrider Foundation. It's a non-profit organization that represents and protects the interests of surfers and other beach enthusiasts. It has a proven track record of successes in preserving our natural beaches, enhancing ocean wave recreation and defending public access, water quality and marine ecology.

Stand up for your rights (and lefts)! Write for a brochure, or send $25 for an individual membership ($10 student) to:
